

Richard Liberatore

After 40 years in the textile business, 20 as vice president of sales for a division of West Point Pepperell, I joined my father Joe at the business he started in 1936. Liberatore's Garden located in the Arthur Avenue Market operated for 82 years. I was a part of the business since my teenage years, but when I started working at the business full time, my intentions were to find a way to contribute to the improvement of the neighborhood where I was raised. Joining the Belmont Business Improvement District has given me that opportunity, and I am excited to see the continuing success of the Belmont community.
